In cooperation with:
ACPEL Conference 2017 in Vancouver!

The 6th International Conference on Advance Care Planning and End of Life Care (ACPEL) is scheduled for 2017 and will take place in Vancouver, Canada. Designated convenor is Prof. Sara Davison, Department of Medicine, University of Alberta.

All participants of the 5th ACPEL Conference in Munich will be informed by email when more details become available.
Dear Conference Participants,

Allow me to extend a warm welcome to the 5th International Society of Advance Care Planning and End of Life Care Conference that, for the first time, is being held in Germany. I am glad that you, as leading scientists and practitioners from all around the world, have come together here to share the options and possibilities that hospice and palliative care are able to offer.

Terminally ill and dying persons need the certainty that they are not alone as their life draws to an end and that they are being well cared for and supported in every way.

Beyond providing pain relief and managing other symptoms, the focus of the many impressive services offered by the hospice and palliative care facilities throughout our country is also on meeting the emotional, spiritual and social needs of patients through a combination of medical, nursing, voluntary and spiritual care.

To ensure that everyone can rely on receiving this care and support when needed, we will continue to strengthen hospice and palliative care provision.

In recent years, we had made great strides in establishing and expanding outpatient specialist palliative care and strengthening outpatient hospice services. In July 2013 for instance, a forum for “Palliative and Hospice Care in Germany” was set up at the Federal Ministry of Health. In addition to networking the major actors, it is our aim to effectively integrate hospice culture and palliative care into clinical practice on the ground.

With our “Act to Enhance Hospice and Palliative Care in Germany” that the Cabinet adopted in April of this year, we have taken another major step towards strengthening palliative care and hospice culture in the places where people spend the end of their lives – be it at home, in nursing homes, or hospitals. Moreover, insured persons and their relatives will have the right to receive individual counselling and assistance from their health insurance fund in selecting and taking up palliative care and hospice care services.

In addition, we are creating the statutory basis for ensuring that nursing homes can organise and offer their residents advance care planning that will meet their individual and comprehensive medical, nursing, psychosocial and spiritual end-of-life care needs.

This is also the aim you have been pursuing with Advance Care Planning, a concept that, until now, has established itself mainly in the English-speaking countries. It seeks to provide broad access to information and guidance on how to plan for future and end-of-life care. This can help to reduce fears of helplessness, isolation or dying itself and enhance a person’s autonomy and quality of life in the last phase of her or his life.

In light of the foregoing, I am sure that this year’s International Society of Advance Care Planning and End of Life Care Conference, too, will drive and inspire the enhancement of patient-centered care.

I wish all of you an interesting conference, stimulating discussions and many new contacts. Furthermore, I wish to thank all of those who, this year as well, have spared no effort in making the 5th International Society of Advance Care Planning and End of Life Care Conference a success. All of you are major contributors to ensuring that terminally ill people can be secure in the knowledge that they will not feel alone in the last phase of life.

Hermann Gröhe
German Federal Minister of Health
Welcome by the European Association for Palliative Care (EAPC) and the German Society for Palliative Medicine (DGP)

Dear Colleagues,

On behalf of the European Association for Palliative Care (EAPC) I am delighted to welcome you to the 5th International Conference on Advanced Care Planning and End of Life Care (ACPEL) in the beautiful city of Munich.

As the newly-elected President of the EAPC I am delighted that the EAPC offers our support to this important conference. I am struck by the shared objectives of ACPEL and the EAPC, the promotion of excellence in the care of people near the end of life with an emphasis on providing high quality physical, psychosocial, emotional and spiritual care to all; this is at the heart of all we do in palliative care. I believe we have an important role in supporting and preparing patients and families to make important decisions at this critical time in their lives and planning those decisions in partnership with those who care for them personally and professionally.

I would like to commend the organising committee on putting together such an interesting programme and I am sure that will result in debate and discussion around this important topic. I wish you well with your deliberations.

I also hope that some of you will also be at the European Association for Palliative Care Research Congress in Dublin (9th–11th June 2016). I look forward to seeing you there.

Dear Colleagues,

It is a great pleasure for us to welcome you to the 5th Conference of the International Society of Advance Care Planning and End of Life Care here in Munich.

Advance Care Planning (ACP) has a great importance for quality of care and safeguarding patient autonomy. ACP is in accordance with the aims of palliative care. Over the past years we developed and implemented the S3 – Guideline Palliative Medicine for Patients with Incurable Cancer that includes a chapter on ACP. This is the first time that ACP is part of our national guidelines.

We should think about ACP much earlier, and General Practitioners should discuss with their patients wishes and treatment preferences that will meet their individual and comprehensive medical, nursing, psychosocial and spiritual end-of-life care (EOLC) needs. Insufficient ACP may pose considerable challenges to those treating patients at the end of life (EOL). Palliative care is a multidisciplinary enterprise and we can gain much by our willingness to build bridges to those working in other health care areas. We hope that further implementation of ACP will help us to improve EOLC.

We as DGP support the “Act to Improve Hospice and Palliative Care in Germany” which the German Federal Parliament is expected to adopt this year. This law will strengthen palliative care and hospice culture in the places where people spend the end of their lives, and create a basis for ensuring that nursing homes can organise and offer their residents ACP.

We look forward to meeting colleagues from all over the world, to discuss the development of broad access to ACP and to promote excellence in care for people near the EOL. The DGP will support and conduct the further development of ACP programs, and is eager to join you in an international united effort to improve access to high quality of EOLC supported by ACP.

Yours,

Friedemann Nauck
Past President of the DGP

Lukas Radbruch
President of the DGP

Best wishes

Philip Larkin
EAPC President
Welcome by the Conference Co-Chairs

Dear Colleagues,

Welcome to the 5th International Conference on Advance Care Planning and End of Life Care in Munich, Germany! We are delighted to host this global conference series for the first time on the European continent, and especially in Germany.

Advance care planning (ACP) as a means to promote patient-centred care continues to gain increasing attention in almost all medical fields and care settings. As an ongoing, life-long communication process facilitated by skilled personnel, ACP is an innovative, effective approach eventually ensuring that when patients are no longer able to make their own medical decisions their treatment wishes are known and honoured. Thus, ACP is a prime example of patient-centered care, of taking seriously patients’ concerns, wishes and needs when making and planning treatment and care decisions. And perhaps ACP is even more than that: Clinicians and researchers deeply involved in ACP report that the spirit of ACP unfolds a proliferative effect into every day interactions with patients and their relatives and helps to anchor the crucial but too often neglected concept of patient-centered care deeply and irreversibly in our minds.

While ACP is already well developed and implemented in some (especially Anglo-American) regions of the world, it is still in its infancy or even unknown in other regions, including much of Europe. With the ACPEL2015-Conference, we aim to raise awareness of ACP, promote the exchange between experts and learners in ACP worldwide, provide a platform to present the most current research findings, and spur future high-quality research in this area.

We proudly report that the conference has already attracted more than 300 participants from all over the world, from diverse disciplines and professions and various contexts of health care and health policy. Over 230 abstracts were submitted for the scientific program, covering a wide range of challenging issues in ACP research and implementation. We hope that you all will enjoy an inspiring conference full of new insights, new ideas for your own research or practice, and sustainable networking. Moreover, please take some time to visit some of the treasures that the booming and lively city of Munich, the capital of Bavaria, has to offer in the areas of culture, arts, architecture, and recreation.

Have a wonderful stay in Munich!
